SASHANI

Sashani · Los Angeles, CA

REGGAE ♦ ACOUSTIC ♦ SOUL ♦ POP

Born in Jamaica and based in Los Angeles, Sashani is a singer-songwriter writing in a lane all her own. Her catalog moves between reggae, acoustic, soul, and pop: sultry and grown, intimate but unhurried. Melodies that move slow, lyrics that sit close, songs built for headphones and long drives.

Her debut single "So Boy Bye" is a confident, sun-warm farewell. The forthcoming "Jamaica Shine" is a love letter to the island that raised her. Both lead into her debut EP, arriving 2026. Sashani credits Sony recording artist and vocal coach Summer Watson as the catalyst behind this chapter, the mentor who recognized her voice and championed her path as a singer and songwriter.

Movement came first. A dancer and choreographer from childhood, Sashani trained at the Jamaica School of Dance and went on to perform with a hip-hop collective before stepping into radio, musical theater, and film & television. Her foundation is built across disciplines: voice, body, and camera, informed by formal study in musical theater, dance, and film & TV communications.

Sashani is also an actor, leading the feature A Christmas Winter Song alongside veteran Stan Shaw and Grammy-winning singer Ashanti. The film received an NAACP Image Award nomination for Outstanding Writing. As a producer and director, she extends her storytelling into projects rooted in authentic narratives.

Living with allergies and asthma led her to a personal commitment to wellness and holistic health, a thread that runs quietly through her artistry.
